A guidebook to the geology field trip National Speleological Society Annual Convention, Pittsfield, Massachusetts, August 5-12, 1979. This field trip was designed to introduce the interested visitor to the caves and karst of the northeastern United States. The Trip started and ended in Pittsfield, Massachusetts, and made a westward loop into New York State, with most stops concentrated in the prime karst area of the Northeast, the Helderberg Plateau. The field-trip area was made up of Paleozoic rocks veneered with a variety of glacial sediments, with varying degrees of structural deformation. The cover illustration is the view from the top of the Helderberg Escarpment...
